Overall Project Approach

Diversity of the clientele and their circumstances: age, class, race, cultural and linguistic background, religious affiliation, gender identity, sexual orientation, military status, disability status, life experience

Distinct location-specific factors:
- housing market, economic climate, job market, urban / rural, transportation, survivor access to benefits and services, role of law enforcement and judiciary, overall community climate / attitudes / acceptance

Diversity of providers
(e.g., small, stand-alone shelter / TH vs. full-service, well-resourced agency) and service environments, ranging from under-resourced regions where there is little access to complementary services, to richly resourced regions, where providers can leverage a wide variety of gap-filling services

No one-size-fits-all “best practices” template for providing transitional housing for survivors

Survivors have different backgrounds, circumstances, needs, priorities, definitions of success + Diverse mix of OVW-funded providers in distinct operating environments

No consistent measurement of success + No framework for measuring differences in clienteles or operating environments

No data-informed basis for assessing whether a particular intervention is a “best practice”

Descriptive approach framing and providing context for:
(a) the challenges and choices providers face;
(b) the approaches providers take; and
(c) the unresolved issues and difficult questions with which providers wrestle.
Getting Started /Initial Interviews

- Review of the literature
- Draft of interview questions
- Discussions and “dry runs” with Project Advisory Team
- Revisions to interview questions
- Development of Interview Protocol
- “Field test” with nine TH programs identified by OVW
- Revisions to interview Protocol
- 50+ interviews, with periodic updates to the Protocol
Mid-Course Analysis

- Input de-identified interview transcripts into NVivo Software
- Code provider answers according to topic area discussed
- Compile interview excerpts addressing specific topic areas
- Send topic-specific sets of de-identified provider comments to Project Advisory Team
- 13 Topic-specific discussions with Project Advisory Team – (a) what are providers telling us? (b) what questions do provider comments raise? (c) what additional information is needed? (d) which questions can we stop asking? etc.
- Ongoing literature review
Finishing Data Collection / Integration

• Periodic revisions to Protocol and to the Coding Protocol
• Another 70 TH provider interviews + two “special” interviews
• Finish coding and de-identifying all interview transcripts
• Compile interview excerpts addressing specific topic areas
• Consolidate provider comments: (a) include all possible comments; (b) edit for clarity and brevity, preserve content; and (c) keep comments in chronologic order, avoiding bias
• Consolidate / reorganize taxonomy of topics for clarity
• Continue literature review
The topics are interrelated.
Thank You!
